Accounting

What is Accounting?

The accounting major prepares students for rewarding careers as industrial accountants, cost analysts, controllers, tax accountants, members of financial regulatory teams (such as the IRS or FDIC), independent auditors in CPA firms, and internal auditors. ASU accounting graduates work for manufacturing firms, government agencies, banking, not-for-profit entities, and public accounting firms. In a recent Salary Survey Report, the National Association of Colleges and Employers found that accounting firms are among the top five employers for extending offers to new graduates. In addition, accounting firms are currently among the highest paying employers.
